

Choosing My Product

Your product must show what you've learned during IIM. Choose something:

- that you enjoy
- that will be interesting to your audience
- that is different from other products you've made

Action: commercial, competition, dance, debate, demonstration, experiment, game, interview, lesson, performance, play, puppet show, scavenger hunt, speech, treasure hunt,

Collection: collage, display, learning center, mini-museum, portfolio, scrapbook, terrarium,

Model: diorama, invention, musical instrument, scale model, sculpture,

Technology: animation, computer program, database, PowerPoint, photograph, radio/TV broadcast, recording, web page, Wiki blog, webinar, multimedia museum box,

Visual Representation: bulletin board, cartoon, chart, concept map, costume, display board, family tree, flag, float, graph, map, mask, mobile, mural, needlework, painting, picture book, poster, project cube, puzzle, quilt, time line,

Written Work: advertisement, book (ABC, biography, diary, fact, fantasy, flip book, journal, picture book, recipe book, science fiction, shape book), brochure, crossword puzzle, dictionary, fact cards, letter, magazine, news report, poetry, riddle, song, travel log, word search,

My Audience Will Be:

Remember!

- Be sure your product shares what you've learned during your research
- Plan carefully
- Leave enough time to make a quality product
- Proofread your work

